

a single broken specimen and is considered caved. If G. rudata is considered to be in place, it would indicate assignment to the T. lillei Zone above. However, on balance, assignment to the N. senectus Zone appears more likely. It is a pity that sidewall cores could not be recovered from this point to resolve the uncertainty.