

VITRINITE REFLECTANCE / COAL MACERAL DATA

In the Squid well at 2200-2215m, 2260-2275m, and 2365-2380m, very high reflectances were recorded, which are interpreted to be anomalous to the normal thermal gradient of these sediments. Some additional source of heat (? intrusion) is apparently responsible for these high reflectances.