

The groundmass is pervasively chlorite-stained with subordinate cloudy, microcrystalline epidote and consists essentially of microcrystalline/weakly directed feldspar. The ubiquitous magnetite, leucoxenised opaques and rare smokey apatite complete the relict primary assemblage. Minor traces of fine-grained, partly oxidised pyrite are present.

D. Cowan, B. Sc.